Description

French school 1970s: "Surrealist tapestry III au Nu", patchwork of textile elements cut and assembled on a background of black woolen cloth (slightly attacked), mounted later on a 65 X 93 cm frame. When many years ago I acquired the first of these tapestries, I kept it for a long time in my "murissoir" in the hope of deciphering the monogram. The ace ! As the years went by, I gave it up and put this "Surrealist Owl 1973" up for sale and it left immediately... What was my surprise, the other day, to come across two others! This and an Escher's Cube that I bought immediately and, seeing me do it, a colleague offered me a fourth, a scorpion, still in this strange and very original surrealist vein. As a result, I don't know much more, except that it is not a unicum, that they were created between
