19th-century Terrestrial Globe On A Base

2 850 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Description

An attractive rosewood globe on a stand, dating from the early 19th century, the William IV period. This magnificent rosewood globe on a stand, dating from the early 19th century, the William IV period, is not merely a functional object. It is a remarkable piece that beautifully combines history and craftsmanship. The globe rests on a three-legged base with elegantly turned and scalloped feet, their intricately carved edges enhancing its aesthetic appeal. The supporting column is fluted and adorned with exquisite carved decorations and brass fittings. The globe itself features a world map by Columbus Jordglobe, Sweden (circa 1938), depicting sea routes and ocean currents, making it both educational and visually captivating. This remarkable piece is in excellent condition and

Dealer

Rietveld Antiques
19th and 20th century antiques and decorative pieces
Mobile : +31624758505

Domeinenstraat 20
Mill 5451

reflects the quality of its materials and the richness of its history. The combination of craftsmanship and exquisite design makes this an exceptional addition for any collector or design enthusiast. Dimensions: Ø42 x H92