Description

Mazarine chest of drawers in walnut marquetry and native wood. This rare early 18th century model is attributable to the talent of the Hache family workshop, probably Pierre Hache son of Thomas Hache, in fact the creation of this piece of furniture includes several elements corresponding to their manufacture, the drawers mounted with dovetails and with rebates, but especially the assembly of the back of this chest of drawers where the boards fit together from the top and slide in a bevel of the rear uprights with a reinforcing piece in the corner which is more structural to the slides. Note the decor, including the play of the threads on the uprights of the feet. Very good condition, reinforcement on the rear legs (original and not modified), missing 1 lock, 18th century bronzes. dimensions on the top
