Description

François DIANA (1901-1993), Marseille, characters on the port, oil, 46x65, signed lower right. Certificate of authenticity stamped on the back.

Born in Marseille, Diana is the son of a boilermaker whom he admires and follows from a very young age in port and industrial circles. This marks his political commitment and a large part of his artistic work. He belongs in particular to the groups of "Proletarian painters" and "People's painters". He participated in the creation of the first Maison de la Culture in the province, supported by Louis Aragon, André Malraux and Jean Giono.

We find in his style fauvism, expressionism,
