Description

Secretaire in rosewood from Rio and yellow mahogany crowned with red marble from the Pyrenees with bec-de-corbin moldings. It opens with a drawer in the upper part, a flap and three drawers in the lower part. Their facades are curved, inlaid with light wood representing floral motifs, and provided with bronze pull handles as well as original functional locks with adjusted keys and entries. Halfway up, this piece of furniture is also potbellied, reminiscent of the so-called "tomb" chests of drawers specific to the Louis XIV style. The interior of this piece of furniture offers a writing space with a perimeter in rosewood veneer, and dark red sheepskin with cold stamped, golden vignettes and a central motif. We find two identical drawers with curved fronts, in rosewood and rosewood marquetry
