Description

Large Canterbury or Magazine Rack in Natural Bamboo, stained. Period late 19th century, early 20th century. Made entirely of Bamboo, a natural material highly appreciated for its aesthetics and lightness. Located in the central part, it has a wooden panel with a visible grain and a contrasting color with the bamboo. The shelves and sides are made of spaced bamboo slats, creating an elegant geometric pattern and letting light through. The shelf is decorated with Japanese-style foliage and floral motifs. Flared base, giving a graceful look to the piece of furniture. Perfect stability. This pretty piece of furniture has a dark and shiny shade, giving it a rich and sophisticated look.
