Description

An exceptional and unique piece from the 19th century: a large anatomical model made of papier-mâché and plaster, hand-painted. Marked with the original label: Prof. Dr. Benninghoven (vormals Dr. Benninghoven & Sommer) Berlin NW 21, Turmstrasse 19. Mounted on a black wooden base, with its original wooden stand. The model represents a human torso with a removable frontal part: inside, we discover various detachable internal organs made of papier-mâché. 8 removable parts in total, all numbered for easy identification. Condition: Complete and in good vintage condition. A few elements have small damage. Each piece has been photographed. There is a crack inside the torso, probably due to a fall. This caused additional damage to the left lung and intestines. However, these defects are
