Description

A large polychrome glazed earthenware planter from Choisy-le-Roi, dating from the late 19th century.Globular in shape, it features a generously rounded and slightly ribbed body, topped by a wide circular neck accented with a golden ochre border. Against an ivory-white background unfolds a delicate naturalistic design of wildflowers, foliage, butterflies, and insects, painted in shades of pink, blue, green, and brown. Two lion-headed mascarons in relief, placed on either side of the body, punctuate the composition and contrast with the delicacy of the floral decoration. The piece as a whole reflects the taste for botanical and naturalistic representations characteristic of the decorative arts of the second half of the 19th century.
