Description

Oil on canvas. The scene depicts a fleet of military vessels approaching a deserted, rocky coast. Some disembarked soldiers assist the nearest ships in mooring maneuvers, while others can be seen arriving on the horizon. The painting is reminiscent of Claude Joseph Vernet (1714-1789), a French landscape painter who painted mostly French seascapes and ports. The painting is still on its original canvas; it features several stains. From the Campari company collection. It is presented in a period frame.ARARPI0326226
