Description

This beautiful Louis XIV writing table is in walnut, it opens with a belt drawer, it rests on four turned legs ending with slightly flattened balls, they are connected to each other by a flat and sinuous X-shaped spacer whose edges are chamfered. Its very light walnut is warm and seductive, its wood chosen certainly with great care by the carpenter who made it is of quality, it allowed this table to age well and to reach us in an excellent state of conservation. Period late seventeenth or early eighteenth century.
Dimensions: Tray 105 cm x 68.5 cm, height 74 cm.
