Description

A pair of five-light wall sconces designed by Goffredo Reggiani in the 1970s.Each wall sconce consists of five polished chrome metal reflectors--elongated and tapered in shape--arranged vertically. A spherical bulb sits in front of each reflector, whose mirror-like surface multiplies the play of light.The sculptural and graphic design of these wall sconces is characteristic of 1970s Italian design, in which chrome-plated metal serves as both structure and reflective surface.Manufacturer: Reggiani, Italy, circa 1970.
