Description

Emotion, symbolism, and Provençal light... This 18th-century painted canvas depicts the biblical scene of Rachel and Lia: Jacob, deceived by Laban, must serve seven additional years to marry Rachel, a symbol of desired love, while Lia embodies fidelity and divine promise. Painted with natural pigments and mounted on an oak frame, this work embodies all the decorative power of a carefully preserved ancient painting. Visible but discreet old restorations attest to its history and authenticity.
