Description

Very nice and unusual bronze dagger ethnic Baoulé Ivory Coast dating from the nineteenth century or earlier. The handle, of great finesse, is decorated trompe l'oeil a weave of plant fibers in which nails would be planted. The work is of such quality that the various elements do not seem to be the result of one and the same cast. Element of pageantry and weapon to wear at the belt, this dagger was inevitably intended for an important personage. The blade, made of steel, is truncated and very lacunary. This does not affect the aesthetics of the room; all his interest residing in the dagger handle. Dagger height 21 cm. Total height with base 26.5 cm.
