Description

A highly original Art Deco period piece crafted from Macassar ebony and of exceptional quality. It opens with two doors, the interiors of which are lined with rosewood. Behind the doors is an upper storage compartment, followed by a column of nine English-style drawers made of oak. It should be noted that a few drawers can easily be removed to create new storage space on shelves. The doors are adorned with beautiful marquetry in the purest 1930s style. In the center, there is a section of open shelving at the bottom, and at the top, a door that opens. It conceals a very ingenious cork display panel that pivots on an axis. Please note that I have not touched the map on this board; according to the previous owners, it was placed there by their father a very long time ago. This piece of furniture can be
