Description

It is hard to say whether the liqueurs developed by the Hanappier brand are more famous than the advertisements that promote them. The firm Hanappier & Cie, founded in Bordeaux, was distinguished not only by the quality of its products but also by its knack for discovering the most remarkable talents of the era.
Its advertising posters, enameled metal signs, and--like the piece offered here--embossed and painted metal signs are highly sought after by collectors, often being the work of illustrators such as Albert Guillaume (1873-1942) or Henri Guydo (1868-1930). Examples can be found in collections such as those of the Musée d'Aquitaine in Bordeaux and the Museum of Art and History in Geneva.
