Charles House (sometimes called Charles House and Son) was founded in 1908 by the French Ernest Charles who bought Ullmann, a company specializing in bronze. In its early days, the company produced antique bronze lighting fixtures and became famous for its ability to work with the material; it is thus forging a reputation within the world of bronze art professionals. In 1960, Maison Charles moved to the Marais district in Paris. It is here that Chrystiane Charles (1927-2013), Jean's wife and a famous bronze
