Description

A bronze cast with a brown patina depicting The Deliverance, an iconic work by French sculptor Émile Oscar Guillaume (1867-1954), created in 1914. The sculpture depicts a nude allegorical female figure standing on tiptoe atop a textured globe, her arms and gaze turned toward the sky, brandishing a sword in her right hand. A high-quality antique cast bearing the incised signature "E. Guillaume" and the foundry mark "F. Barbedienne Fondeur" on the globe, and the title "Délivrance" on the sword's guard. Originally titled La Victoire when it was created in 1914 to commemorate the Battle of the Marne, this work had a tremendous impact after World War I: in 1919, the newspaper Le Matin commissioned eleven monumental copies from the Barbedienne foundry to present to the
