Description

A large Art Deco sideboard from Belgium, made around 1920. In the 1920s Belgian furniture makers loved strong lines, rich wood and contrasting materials, and sideboards like this one formed the heart of the dining rooms of that time.The front is divided into three sections: a set of five drawers in the centre and a cupboard on each side with two doors. Long black lacquered handles run horizontally across the doors and drawers, creating a graphic rhythm against the warm wood. The top is a thick slab of deep green marble with lively white and grey veins, and the whole piece stands on stepped block feet that give it a solid, architectural look.The sideboard is made of oak with a warm reddish-brown finish. Behind the doors are adjustable shelves in light oak, and the drawers offer plenty of storage for
