Description

This elegant and imposing Victorian-era English dressing table, crafted around 1880, stands out for the warmth and fine grain of its solid walnut. Its molded frame, featuring a dovetail joint and rounded upper corners, holds its tilting mirror. The piece is supported by two sturdy turned legs, topped with delicate carved finials, and features a hinged mechanism. A bronze pinecone adds a decorative touch to these legs. The structure rests on a sculpted base, held together by a solid turned crossbar that ensures perfect stability. This base rests on casters.Combining the grandeur of the Victorian style with the functionality of a large swivel mirror, this exceptional piece will bring a theatrical and refined presence to a dressing room, bedroom, or elegant entryway.Period: Late 19th
