Description

Oil / canvas Signed on the top right, a very successful composition with these peonies in a porcelain vase of Paris on an entablature. The mixture of colors is daring, blue, green and yellow which contrasts with the red, the pink and the white of the flowers. Charles Kvapil, Belgian artist of the School of Paris influenced by Fauvism had a large production but unfortunately unequal in quality, which explains the disparity of the ribs of this painter. This bouquet is part of his powerful and powerful works.
