Description

We are pleased to present this 18th-century Italian oil on canvas painting.It is a charming still life with flowers and fruit. The painting depicts a rich composition: bunches of white and black grapes are visible, pears in the left and right foreground, and a central basket filled with red fruits and apples. Roses and other colorful flowers stand out on the left, balancing the composition. This type of composition is a classic example of the "still life" genre, which depicts inanimate objects, a much-loved artistic style in Italian and European painting between the 17th and 18th centuries. The style of this painting perfectly reflects the tradition of 18th-century European still life, with a meticulous attention to the realistic rendering of the fruits and flowers. The painting has a unique horizontal format that
