Description

This Louis XVI-style side table, crafted from solid walnut, features a sliding front panel--known as a "curtain panel"--composed of thin slats and adorned with a discreet and refined brass lens-shaped knob. The top is crowned with a slab of gray Saint-Anne marble, whose crack has been carefully restored. This marble is set into the frame and surrounded by a rim. The subtly rounded legs extend into turned feet that taper to a spindle shape. They are adorned with delicate flanges that enhance the piece's classic character and are connected by a crossbar that provides additional storage space while ensuring the stability of the entire structure. This table is a functional piece that also charms with its compact size. Perfect for lovers of antique furniture or enthusiasts of classic decor.Period:
