Description

Vintage silver gelatin print, circa 1923. Large locomotive repair shop in France. The immense space is dominated by a complex iron and glass structure. Rows of steam locomotives, some partially dismantled for maintenance or under construction, occupy the floor, surrounded by various machine parts, tools, and equipment. This image testifies to the industrial power of the early 20th century. A solitary man, identifiable by his hat and coat, stands amidst the machinery, providing a human scale in this imposing industrial landscape. Image size: 16.4 x 22.5 cm. Mat size: 40 x 50 cm.
