Description

Portrait of Louis, Dauphin of France, says Monsignor the Great Dauphin, son of Louis XIV, oil on canvas, late seventeenth century, gilded wood frame, nineteenth century. Frame included (H x W): 57 x 48 cm. The Grand Dauphin is represented in a wig, three-quarters face bust, cuirass, wearing the cord and wearing a blue velvet vest embroidered with gold. The mass of the hair is lightened by the fine treatment of the light locks. The face is detached by a carnation of milk raised with red cheeks and lips. It contrasts with the white-spotted lace cravings that go down on the brown breastplate, with its very well-made metallic highlights, with its ox blood lining whose color perfectly matches the blue of the richly embroidered gold coat. Very good condition. Formerly rentoilé, posterior frame. On
