Description

Master landscaper of the neoclassical school, Jean Victor BERTIN exhibited regularly at the salon from 1793.Highly appreciated, he is the subject of numerous public commissions.His works are featured in the largest museums: Louvre Museum, Boston Museum of Fine Arts...The history of this painting is quite astonishing because it was discovered hidden behind an authentic oil by the painter Pierre de BELAY (1890-1947) in the same format. On this occasion it was damaged and very dirty, hence the restorations carried out.The subject represents a lively Italian landscape, two figures standing at the top of a path next to a ruined building.Oil on canvas c.180038 x 55 cmSigned lower left "V.BERTIN"Very nice presentation, recently relined with some restorationsThe signature
