Description

Sideboard / enfilade by Dieter Wäckerlin for Idealheim - Switzerland, 60's designed by Swiss designer Dieter Wäckerlin for Idealheim, an emblematic figure of Swiss modernist design from the 1950's-70's.This piece features a front in wenge veneer on back, offering a spectacular veining with almost hypnotic patterns, typical of Idealheim's most qualitative productions. This marquetry work underscores the designer's graphic rigor and minimalist elegance. The interior, in light maple, provides a refined, luminous contrast, revealing a functional design thought through to the smallest detail.Resting on a sober, slender base, the whole presents balanced proportions and an architectural line, the signature of Wäckerlin's work, renowned for the purity of its forms and the quality of its furniture
