Description

A rare pair of Cannakkale vases.

Cannakkale is the city of manufacture of the famous ewers called "Demoiselles d'Avignon".

The city took over the production of ceramics and pottery for the Ottoman Empire in the 17th century after production ceased in Iznik.

This pair of vases has a unique shape and decor, probably a private order.

Late 19th, early 20th century.

Chips in the enamel, which is very weathered, but otherwise the vases are intact.
