Description

An elegant Chinese ivory brush holder dating from the late Qing Dynasty, displayed on its dark wooden base, with a total height of 13 cm. Its surface is adorned with a delicate engraved design featuring blooming flowers, butterflies in flight, and scholar's objects. The reverse side bears a calligraphic inscription in red quoting the famous verse "??????? " (The jade flute resounds in the Yellow Crane Tower), accompanied by a signature and a seal. A beautiful collector's piece that attests to the craftsmanship of late Qing workshops.
