Description

Italian tablecloth hand-embroidered mosaic stitch using the technique known in Italy as "sfilato siciliano". This beautiful tablecloth was made around the mid-20th century from thick, milky-white linen, characterized by a sturdy and even weave.The quality of the linen--solid, durable, and not too thin--along with the care with which it has been used over time, account for its excellent overall condition.However, there are a few very subtle small brown spots, the most noticeable of which is shown in the last photo of the listing:The tablecloth does not come with napkins.
