Description

An exceptional monumental sculpture carved from white Italian marble, created in Italy in the 1950s. This remarkable work stands out not only for its impressive dimensions and extraordinary technical mastery, but also for its uniqueness, having been conceived as an original artistic creation rather than a reproduction of an ancient model.According to its history, the sculpture was likely commissioned as part of a set of three monumental sculptures with a marine theme, each conceived as an individual work with its own identity and composition. Unlike many decorative marble sculptures inspired by classical antiquity, this piece is not a direct copy of an earlier work, but rather a unique mid-20th-century interpretation inspired by mythology, symbolism, and the beauty of the sea.Masterfully carved from
