Description

A rare small bronze sculpture depicting a stylized fennec fox, serving as a trinket dish or desk ornament, signed "Kotchar."With its clean lines, stylized depiction of the animal, and balanced composition, this sculpture is fully in keeping with the Art Deco aesthetic and the artistic explorations of the Parisian avant-garde between the two world wars.The signature "Kotchar" refers to Ervand Kotchar (1899-1979), one of the leading figures of modern Armenian art. Trained in Tbilisi and later based in Paris from 1923 to 1936, he quickly became part of the avant-garde artistic circles. He exhibited at the Salon des Indépendants, the Salon d'Automne, and the Salon des Surindépendants, where his works were displayed alongside those of the greatest artists of his time, including Pablo Picasso, Fernand Léger,
