Description

This bronze sculpture by T. Gechter depicts a finely harnessed riding horse facing a hunting dog intently watching a ball lying on the terrace. The precision of the naturalistic observation is evident in the modeling of the horse's musculature and the details of the dog's coat, lending this animal composition remarkable realism.The piece features a beautiful brown patina with warm highlights and rests on a molded base of sea-green marble veined with white, providing an elegant contrast to the bronze.Jean-François-Théodore Gechter (1795-1844), a leading sculptor of Romantic bronze and a specialist in animal subjects, is best known for his high relief depicting the Battle of Austerlitz, which adorns the Arc de Triomphe.A refined collector's piece, ideal for adorning a
