Description

Here is a piece that immediately stands as a true hearth sculpture. Pair of patinated wrought iron andirons, the upright diamond-point shafts each supporting a solid hand-hammered bronze cube pierced like a gaming die. The bases rest on opposing scrolls, lending both stability and graphic elegance. The work of a 1950s blacksmith in the modernist and brutalist spirit, where the utilitarian object becomes sculpture. A utilitarian object turned decorative work, it will powerfully dress a contemporary fireplace or a characterful interior, and will delight lovers of fine ironwork.
