Description

A large, free-form circular coffee table in the Brutalist style, created by the workshop of Janette and Georges Picard in Vallauris, dating from 1965-1970. The tabletop consists of a spectacular monolithic slab of chamotte ceramic with an enamel finish. It features a stylized depiction of a rooster or solar bird with dynamic lines. The treatment of the material creates a beautiful contrast between the light, grainy, speckled background and the glossy glazes in warm shades of brown, ochre, and bright orange. The piece is signed "J.G. Picard" in the lower right corner of the design. The ceramic tile is set within a thick, beautifully crafted solid wood frame, featuring visible traditional mortise-and-tenon joints. The piece rests on a tripod base composed of three solid cylindrical legs. In very good overall condition. The glaze is luminous, with no cracks or visible restoration. The wood has a beautiful, warm, and even patina from use, with very slight signs of aging consistent with its age. The structure is perfectly stable and sound. Dimensions: Diameter: 69.5 cmHeight: 36.5 cm---- New: Get a sneak peek at my new arrivals!
