Description

Mirror Louis XVI Provencal. Of a good quality of sculpture, nervous and balanced, it is with architectural decoration appearing pilasters with ionic capitals and resumes the typical neoclassical ornamental repertoire like garlands of laurel, daisies, laurel leaves in base on the amounts, posts on the crosses the bottom. The pediment is carved with two rigorous horns of symmetry, in the center a medallion adorned with a node, flowers and leaves surmounted by a central node (missing part). Two branches of laurel rising on each side of the medallion. Two pine cones overhang architectural elements and a denticulate cornice. Beautiful gilding of origin, some bursts visible on the photos (more photos on request). Floored background and very nice cloudy complexion of mercury mirror. Together very
