Description

Large pot-bellied vase, beautifully adorned with Imari-inspired decorations. This style of Japanese origin, which appeared in the 17th century, was taken up considerably by Westerners, sensitive to the poetry of this art. This work is signed by the artist Henri GIBOT, and dated November 16, 1943, under the base. This vase is magnified by a vegetal decoration of flowers and foliage in shades of blue, gold, pink, green and orange. Butterflies and birds seem ready to land there. The base is embellished with a frieze with geometric curves, reminiscent of the movements of water, a bridge spans this imaginary river. You will be touched by the delicacy and refinement of this important vase, which will subtly dress the room in which you choose to place it.
