Good general condition of the maps.

Colorful boundaries of the time.

Pleasant copy A handwritten table entitled: catalog of maps in the 3rd volume.

Table of maps from 9 to 44. (The numbering goes from 37 to 39).

Dezauche brings together in this atlas a set of the first maps of the French departments by regions.

He will work for this new edition on the existing background maps of Delisle, dated around the 1780s. The engravers will reuse the existing brass instruments which they will modify with a new engraved layout of the departments and a new warning insert for the explanation of the departments then colored in watercolor. The new map of France illustrating the departments of Dezauche dated 1794 is entitled: Map of France following its new division, drawn up on the same scale as the map of the provinces of Guillaume Delisle. By Dezauche, engineer geographer, 1794.
