Description

This wooden and stucco frame in its original gilding easily reproduces the codes of the Louis XV style; the patterns of barley grain crisscross the slopes while the angles and centers are adorned with foliage. Better market than a period frame, it can restore its luster to an 18th century portrait or frame a pretty painting in the living room , impressionist. The golden age of these frames had seen the birth under Napoleon III of the so-called "refused" room in order to accommodate a very large number of artists who could not find a place in the official rooms.
