Description

Persian rug Sarough or sarouck, around 1970 in perfect condition, hand knotted in very soft kerk wool decorated with a magnificent combination of colors for around 350,000 knots per M2, presenting a large field decorated with a flowered trellis of roses decorated with a central medallion and four spandrels ,.

The whole surrounded by a wide border, followed in parallel by two widely decorated counter-borders, all in perfect condition.

The proposed model is a real flower garden, centered with a large medallion placed on a deep cream field and a thickness of 1.5 cm, which makes it a very comfortable carpet.

The Sarouk carpet, also known as Hamadan, the Ecbatana of Antiquity, is the place where some villages are knotted and some European buying
