Description

Large oil on canvas depicting the bourdigues in the island of Martigues. The bourdigues were a space intended for fishing, made up of an enclosure which made it possible to capture fish when the sea receded. Very beautiful impressionist spirit canvas painted around 1910, treated with a rich material which allows to obtain a luminous intensity very appreciated in the landscapes of the French Riviera and in particular of Martigues. Work in very good condition, a small piece of reinforcement on the back. Gilded wood frame, key frame. Stamp Lefranc et Cie. Exhibition label. Dimensions of the canvas, 68x93 cm Total dimensions, with frame, 92x114 Jean-Baptiste Duffaud, born in Marseille on January 7, 1853 and died on June 17, 1927 in Paris, pupil of Magaud at the
