Description

Copy of the Promenade, a thousand flowers tapestry from the Cluny Museum. A lord and three ladies walk around, followed by a young page. The ladies wear the costume prevalent in France at the beginning of the 16th century and are adorned with rich jewelry mainly in chain designs, in vogue at that time. The dress of the young woman in the middle has a detail imported from Italy: the sleeves with slits that let out a more delicate linen. The lord who holds a gourd with the arms of France wears loose, mid-length clothes and shoes with "ox muzzle" toe. Beautiful border with floral decoration. In the style of the 16th century. Around 1880. Height 245 cm, width 190 cm. Delivery possible.
