Description

Painter of Spanish origin who studied at the School of Fine Arts in Paris.

From 1910 he became exclusively an Orientalist painter. He often travels to North Africa.

The drawing presented here is a view of an oriental interior, a public or private place which undoubtedly served as a preparatory study for a painting.

We notice in the center a basin where the building is reflected as well as seated figures.

The drawing is monogrammed and bears the stamp of the artist's studio.
