Description

Painting representing the portrait of a young girl dressed in the fashion of the time. The rosy complexion and blond hair stand out with extreme shine and are highlighted by the contrast created with the darkness of the clothes and the background. The high quality style and pictorial rendering allow the painting to be considered as attributable to the Venetian painter Pietro Pajetta, active in the second half of the 19th century until his death in 1911. The original format of the painting does not correspond to the current format; indeed, the dimensions have been reduced to an oval. The painting comes with a passe-partout and a contemporary Venetian frame.
