Description

Important porcelain vase with flared neck, the potbellied part of which is decorated with a scene of country life. Near a person sitting next to a buffalo, two men have a discussion while walking in nature. One carries a bundle of branches and the other a fishing rod. We also find, in a window in the upper part, a representation of a dignitary in his salons. This article has two white ears on a golden background as handles. The lip and the bottom are embellished with a gold border. The back of this property presents a series of sinograms. This large vase in delicate tones will bring an exotic touch to your decoration.
