Description

This piece of furniture, in solid cherry wood with oak interior, is topped with a yellow Breche du Benou marble, originating from the town of Bieille in the Pyrénées-Atlantiques. This reserve top is molded at the edge of a bec-de-corbin. This is equipped with a rotating porcelain basin, with a water drainage system, as well as two "Maurice Herbeau" stainless steel taps, which can be independently connected to hot and cold water. They are topped by a marble tablet, supported at the ends by two console elements. The apron, projecting and recessed in the central part, offers two side drawers. This set rests on two boxes on plinths. The one on the left opens with four identical drawers, with shell handles in silver metal. The one on the right consists of a door on knobs, equipped with a pull button and shaped
