Description

This pair of consoles in the 17th century style, representing seraphs, constitutes an atypical element of wall decoration in oak wood. These cherubs differ in the shape of their faces but are identical in their composition. They are topped with curly, golden hair, and are surrounded by majestic bluish gray plumage. Each of the characters is surmounted by a gray volute beam with green foliage at its corner. We can see in these two angels protective souls who will also bring an undeniable touch of originality to your interior.
