Description

Gabrielle Baëlle geoplastician. Born in 1965 in Paris, she has been working in Haute-Normandie since 1996. Gabrielle's creative universe is mysterious. It is very difficult to talk about his art; no clear concordance or influence makes it possible to link his personal or professional journey to the forms resulting from his imagination. His passage in architectural firms? His detour through the work of blown glass? Do we not perceive sequences of bubbles in his Concrétions and Alma Mater? His installation in Normandy? Perhaps here the beginning of another track, because his works seem more inspired by nature than by his urban childhood. But a Norman nature? Corals, sea anemones, giant caterpillars very close to the port of Saint-Valéry-en Caux?

Je suis souvent touchée par les oeuvres représentant un trésor de la vie sous-marine. Cette oeuvre de Gabrielle Baecile me touche parce que chaque crevasse, chaque trou, chaque ajour est divinement contrôlé. La texture créée est riche de par la minutie de la créatrice. Les lignes radiant sur la partie aplatie, représentent ma partie préférée, sûrement pour l'aspect linéaire, la notion de fragilité et pour la représentation de vécu, d'érosion...
