Description

Large portico clock with six columns in white marble resting on cherry red marble bases. Each column is decorated with chiseled and gilded bronze (garland of flowers, base and capital, and winding of a frieze of pearls). It rests on a decorated oval base with a frieze of laurel leaves in gilded bronze. In the center of the portico, a putto in gilded bronze rests on a square base with only four feet. The movement, signed by FURET in Paris, is crowned with a small dove in gilded bronze. Original movement with silk thread suspension has been revised and works perfectly. Period mercury gilding.
