Joseph Frédéric CHARRIERE (1803-1876)

Started in Paris in 1816 as an apprentice cutler. In 1821 he took over at 34/35 Cour St Jean de Latran. He specializes in surgical instruments. Surgeons like Civiale, Ségalas or Dupuytren offered him their patronage and ideas for the creation of numerous instruments.

In 1833 he transferred his establishment to n°9 (7bis) rue de l'École de Médecine.

In 1842 we find it at n°6, opposite in the same street. He received numerous awards with honours; unanimously recognized for the excellence of its production.

In 1852 his son succeeded him.
