Description

This walnut piece of furniture is made up of a belt of two drawers, which are pulled using drop handles and closed with a central key. Its framed top is molded in the throat and beak of corbin. The panel that constitutes it is a single part without joints. It opens to the rear with the help of hinges, revealing a red marble from the Pyrenees, embedded in a wooden frame. This flap offers two supports that unfold to receive a service shelf. The set rests on two turned legs at the front and two rectangular legs at the back. They are connected, at regular intervals, by two recessed shelves made of a single seamless panel. This trolley is a practical and useful piece of furniture, with interesting dimensions, suitable for any type of interior.
